POCPO6 did not result in significant differences in N~2~ fixation in the greenhouse experiment. Hence, the depletion of available N sources and energy stores, as well as the effects of soil compaction and temperature on N metabolism seem to be important factors. However, the signals from the two sensors were more reliable than the greenhouse experiment. This is a strong indication that nitrification was the primary process that occurred in the soil due to the presence of bacteria that were able to grow and thus maintain the N cycle. In summary, this study showed that the magnitude of the changes in N~2~ fixation, denitrification, and nitrification were not equal. Both denitrification and nitrification were affected in the presence of Bacillus sp 3da54e8ca3
